

I Dr. Nilupa Prasadini Karunathilake, a final-year histopathology registrar from Sri Lanka, at Faculty of Medicine University of Peradeniya would like to express my sincere appreciation for awarding a BDIAP bursary to attend the virtual component of the 34th International congress of the International Academy of Pathology (IAP world Congress) 2022, that took place on 11-12th October Sydney Australia.

The virtual conference was well organised and consisted of various sessions with updated and inclusive knowledge in pathogenesis, genetic basis, management and prognosis of Histopathological fields. Many lectures were conducted by superb speakers, provided us a vast knowledge with an interesting case-based approach. Most importantly, there were recorded videos of the lectures in the site that we could visit later and enjoy, without missing the sessions due to the time lag of different time zones. The highlight of the event was going through the poster gallery where I also got the opportunity to publish an abstract.

Furthermore, the virtual platform was advanced, user-friendly, very easy and convenient to access and navigate through the events. Moreover, the online platform was graphically designed in a way that we feel as if we were visiting the session in-person.

At last but not least once again I deeply thank and appreciate the organizing committee for their generosity in offering such invaluable and inspirational opportunities to trainees like us, throughout our carrier on behalf of the furtherance of blossoming pathologists all over the world..!
