

I am extremely thankful to the British division of the International Academy of Pathology for awarding me a bursary to virtually attend the 13th International Junior Academy Summer School 10-12th August 2023. The summer school had a varied program with eminent speakers, and I knew should I be successful in my bursary application it would positively impact my overall knowledge base and supplement my examination revision.

I especially enjoyed the presentation on head and neck pathology which discussed interesting cases with an emphasis on the clinicopathological correlation. This knowledge is hard to ascertain from textbooks alone. I also found the session on lymphomas fascinating, in which the speaker delved into potential future research areas within the field. The case presentation session from across the globe was thought provoking and educational. It was helpful to consider the differential diagnoses and how the overall diagnosis was favoured in these cases, some of which were quite rare.

I would like to thank the British division of the International Academy of Pathology once again for awarding me this bursary and would highly recommend and encourage trainees to apply.
